September 2018 / Elul 5778–Tishrei 5779

FROM THE RABBI

Esther Hugenholtz

The hubbub of High Holidays preparations is in full swing – from polishing silver to formatting the schedule, practicing liturgy, checking the sound system to sermon writing. All my rabbinic friends and colleagues are bunkering down during this feverish month of Elul to create the most meaningful, beautiful and spiritual experience they can for their congregations. In terms of my rabbinate, I ‘came of age’ in the Internet era and I can imagine that previous generations of rabbis in the pre-Internet era would have felt far more isolated when it came to the unique features of this season. As we gear up, we know that we are going to come together as a community this coming Sunday night and I so look forward to it. The light will be mellow, the sanctuary will be full and both old friends and newcomers will enjoy the warmth of community.

Yet, among all this busyness, it is easy to overlook the stillness and reverence of this Season. The High Holidays contain a multitude of paradoxes: music that speaks to the kishkes, that stirs the soul, and yet liturgy that affirm many ideas that most contemporary Jews cannot believe in. We come together searching for an experience that many of us would be hard-pressed to define and articulate.

We want to be touched, moved and loved and yet the complex and deep questions that we live with every day keep our critical thinking abilities on the fore. We enter this space with our questions, our ambivalence, our joy but also our pain. And what are we supposed to make of all of this? How do we turn discomfort into questioning and questioning into curiosity and curiosity into transformation?

Allow yourself to sit with the fullness of all those emotions, ranging from boredom to transcendence. Give yourself permission to be vulnerable, to hear the still small voice in the blast of the Shofar.

The practice of saying Psalm 27 in Elul may give us some clues. Elul, the month preceding Tishrei, is marked by a number of spiritual practices to ‘ready’ our souls for the great inner work that we are called to do during this time. Traditionally, the shofar is blown daily and Psalm 27 is recited. For years now, I’ve pondered why this Psalm was chosen for the season of awe, and while I don’t have a hard-and-fast answer yet, I suspect it might have to do something with living our experiences through its words. Fear of abandonment and death, of broken relationships and interpersonal tensions. Yet also of hope and light, of equanimity, acceptance and joy. ‘Achat sha’alti me’et Adonai otah avakesh’ – we sing, ‘one thing I ask of You, Eternal One, one thing I seek after’. What’s the relationship between the request

and the search? It's personal accountability. Taking ownership and responsibility for our inner lives, this 'bayit Adonai', this House of God that the soul is believed to be. The High Holidays encourage us to find that inner sanctum, in spite (or maybe because of) the grandeur and drama of its rituals. To be able to ask – to admit to vulnerability, fallibility and need. To pursue something Greater than ourselves, despite our doubts and questioning. To be receptive: to the love of others, of self and, perhaps that of God. We are called to journey, to become uprooted and to come to a new place of understanding. It is breaking these patterns that allow us to change, to repair relationships, to admit to our flaws, and to work, as our Synagogue President Kathy Jacobs described so beautifully as a Mussar practitioner, on our 'middot', our virtues.

The High Holidays is a model for us to undergo that process. As we enter the mellow light of our beautiful sanctuary, request one thing. Pursue one thing. Allow yourself to sit with the fullness of all those emotions, ranging from boredom to transcendence. Give yourself permission to be vulnerable, to hear the still small voice in the blast of the Shofar. Let the questions come in the safety of community and in the power of ancient ritual, even if we don't always fully comprehend it. At the end of the day, like the Psalm itself states 'chazak veyamatz libech' – 'be strong and let your heart take courage'. Our tradition is an optimistic one. We can change, we can repair, we can question and renew our days as of old. Each and everyone of us is given another chance.

My family and I look forward to celebrating this special season with all of you.

TORAH READING COURSE

There will be a continuation of our Torah reading course at 6:30 p.m. on Thursdays September 6, 13, and 20 at Hillel. Contact the office for details.

FROM THE PRESIDENT

Kathy Jacobs

I have been thinking about “being a blessing” as I approach the High Holidays and take the annual inventory that is prompted by the month of Elul as we prepare for the “days of awe”.

Personally, I enjoy studying Mussar, and the “Midot” or soul traits that comprise Jewish values. One trait that has been very much on my mind these days is hakarat ha’tov (gratitude), and I have been reflecting just how grateful I am to the wonderful volunteers that make our communal life possible. Our volunteers are great blessings to us all, and believe me, they do not get enough credit. If you know about them and what they do, I guarantee that they do more than you see. And there are unsung heroes and heroines who work quietly and invisibly and just get things done.

So another midah I need to include in my personal accounting is nedivut (generosity), which these volunteers have demonstrated and that I have not adequately reciprocated nor given them the kavod (honor), they deserve. I don’t have room here to even list their names, but I feel the need to find a way to honor them.

I have struggled with gevurah (discipline) as board president. Our administrative team and the board will attest that I am late with my bulletin and board agendas. Given the amount of work we have to do,

I have learned the blessing of menuchat ha’nefesh (equanimity), and have found the ability to give myself a break and not let the pressure of work paralyze me and keep me from moving forward.

As board president, I have learned the relationships we have with one another are so precious. Let’s use this season to seek healing for breaches and find joy in one another.

As board president, I have learned the relationships we have with one another are so precious. Let’s use this season to seek healing for breaches and find joy in one another. Whatever our struggles this past year, let us go forward and be blessings to one another through mutual support and understanding.

Chag Sameach!

RAGBRAI THANK YOU

Lee Goldberg

I am writing because wanted to let you know how much I appreciated the hospitality and the warm embrace of your community when I was in Iowa City. After a long week of pedaling across the state, it was so nice to share shabbat dinner and services with about a dozen of your congregants, who were welcoming and curious about my experience. Even though I was the only RAGBRAI participant to attend (I think most of the campsites were far from your shul), your congregants embraced the whole mission of providing Jewish riders a place to celebrate at least a portion of shabbat before heading off the next day. Personally I am not particularly observant, but my family does make sure to gather every Friday night for shabbat dinner so the ritual is important to me; it was great to be in community that evening, even though I was away from home.

SISTERHOOD NEWS

Beverly Jones

We wish all of you a happy, healthy, and peaceful 5779. L'Shanah Tovah.

Rosh HaShanah Oneg

Help us celebrate the new year of 5779. We're still looking for volunteers to provide desserts for Sisterhood's fabulous "Not Only Honey Cake Oneg" following Erev Rosh HaShanah services on Sunday, September 9. We are asking for traditional honey cakes, other desserts that use apples or honey, or desserts that use ingredients reminiscent of the season. In addition to baked goods, we can also use fruits, nuts; and of course, anything made with chocolate. If possible, please bring your dessert in a container that you do not want back. Please label dairy and gluten-free items. If you can help, or if you have questions, Contact sisterhood@agudasachimic.org.

Yom Kippur Break Fast

We're helping the Social Committee plan the communal Break Fast following Yom Kippur services on Wednesday, September 19. We need volunteers to bring hard-boiled eggs, cheese, tuna salad, fruit and veggie platters, and desserts. Please contact sisterhood@agudasachimic.org if you can help.

Fall Welcome Event

Join us in meeting new members of Agudas Achim, and getting together with old friends in a relaxing, friendly atmosphere.

When: Sunday, September 23, 2018, 2:00pm

Where: The home of Jayne Sandler,
41 Tucson Place, Iowa City, IA 52246

Program: All About Books

Share a description of a favorite book. It could be fiction or non-fiction.

- It could be a book that's an old friend; one that you always go back to, no matter how many times you've read it.

- It could be a book that opened up the world to you.
- It could be a textbook or a reference book.
- It could be a cookbook or a how-to book.
- It could be a book from your childhood, or a book that you read to your children.
- It could be a book that you wrote yourself.
- If you can't choose among favorites, mention more than one.

Refreshments provided by the Sisterhood Board RSVP's encouraged. Please contact sisterhood@agudasachimic.org. Guests are welcome.

Dues

We hope that you will become a member of Sisterhood for 2018-19 with your annual dues contribution of $36.00. Your dues support special Synagogue projects, Sisterhood activities, and our membership in both Women's League for Conservative Judaism, and Women of Reform Judaism.

A dues request will be mailed out soon. Checks should be made out to Sisterhood, and mailed to our Treasurer, Joni Caplan, 520 Brookland Park Drive, Iowa City, IA 52246. If you still have your Fair Share Dues Form, please consider the option of checking off the Sisterhood membership box. You may also pay by credit card by calling the synagogue administrator, Karen Brady, at 319-337-3813 during office hours.

CARGILL SERIES

NEW TESTAMENT FOR JEWS A SERIES BY PROFESSOR BOB CARGILL

For millennia, Jews have studied the Hebrew Bible and debated its interpretation. However, the Christian New Testament has often been unregarded by the Jewish community, set aside as irrelevant or even hostile to the Jewish faith. A basic understanding of the New Testament not only opens a window of understanding into the Christian theological mindset, but also into the vast diversity of first-century Jewish sectarianism, and actually helps to inform Jews about the origins and practices of their own faith tradition.

Join Dr. Robert Cargill, Asst. Professor of Classics and Religious Studies at the University of Iowa, as he offers a six-lecture series titled “The New Testament for Jews,” and introduces the Christian scriptures in their Jewish context for a Jewish audience. All sessions begin at 11:00 a.m.

Sunday, September 30	Lecture 1: The New Testament Background
Sunday, October 7	Lecture 2: The Gospels and Acts
Sunday, October 28	Lecture 3: The Letters of Paul
Sunday, November 4	Lecture 4: The Non-Pauline Letters
Sunday, November 25	Lecture 5: Revelation and Apocalyptic Literature
Sunday, December 2	Lecture 6: The Canonization of the New Testament

SCHOOL NEWS

Sonja Spear

Sunday School started on a hot, humid morning last week. I'm amazed every year at how fast the kids seem to grow over the summer. Students I remember as little kids are as tall as I am, if not taller (not a terribly high bar, I have to admit).

School no sooner started than it stopped again!

What with Labor Day and Rosh Hashanah, we don't meet again until the middle of the month. The Hebrew School meeting schedule was even worse. There was hardly a week when we could meet both days. So I decided to delay beginning until the High Holidays are behind us.

I now have the luxury of time to work with the teachers on new approaches to teaching Hebrew. We are going to experiment with more active methods of building vocabulary, including having the students respond to complex commands in Hebrew, an approach called Hebrew Through Movement. Once the Hebrew teachers are trained, I'll ask them to train the Sunday School teachers. So you may see kids on Sundays or Mondays putting one yad (hand) on their rosh (head) while standing on one regel (leg). It should be a fun and active approach to learning Hebrew vocabulary that will pay off when they begin to work on reading.

We are going to experiment with more active methods of building vocabulary, including having the students respond to complex commands in Hebrew, an approach called Hebrew Through Movement.

I went to NewCAJE, a conference of Jewish educators, this summer to learn more about this approach. I am very excited to be bringing it to Iowa City!

LIFE CYCLE EVENTS

The congregation extends its condolences to Frank Salomon, Mercedes Nino-Murcia and family on the death of Frank's cousin, Wolfgang Leander.

The congregation extends its condolences to Martha and David Lubaroff on the death of David's sister, Rhona Fox.

The congregation extends its condolences to Claudia Corwin and family on the death of Claudia's father, Stanley Corwin.

Sonja Assouline Burke, the daughter of Susan and Jose Assouline, and her husband Daniel Burke, of Colorado Springs, CO, welcomed a newborn baby, Zev Isaac Burke, on August 15, 2018.

Encyclopedia of Jewish Food by Gil Marks

September. End of summer. Rosh Hashanah, Yom Kippur, Sukkot, a new school year. With cooler weather, a renewed interest in cooking. In this vein, we call your attention to the ENCYCLOPEDIA OF JEWISH FOOD, by Gil Marks. You may remember that Rabbi Marks visited our congregation several years ago. I've used this book of his since then. It's not just a cookbook full of recipes from diverse cultures, but an aggregate of fascinating information about the background for each. You'll find three columns of text for chicken soup, plus a recipe I've been using since I read it. Nine columns for matza. And nine columns including TEN recipes for Charoset: Afghan, Ashkenazic, Curacao, Georgian, Israeli, Italian Chestnut, Persian, Sephardic, Surinam, and Yemenite! For fun reading and some great new recipes, see ENCYCLOPEDIA OF JEWISH FOOD, by Gil Marks. It's in the Becker Learning Center at 641.5/Mar.

HEARTSAFE INITIATIVE

RICHARD KERBER MEMORIAL HEARTSAFE INITIATIVE

November 11, 1:30 pm - Agudas Achim Social Hall

WHY SHOULD YOU TAKE A CPR COURSE?

Every second counts in Cardiac Arrest. Did you know that irreparable brain damage can occur in as little as 3-4 minutes after cardiac arrest? Sudden Cardiac Arrest (SCA) touches us all: Anyone of any age, race and gender can suffer SCA, most often with no warning.

It is the # 3 cause of death in the U.S, more than breast, lung, colon and prostate cancer combined.

- 1 life every 2 minutes is lost to SCA
- 12,500 children experience SCA each year
- Most people die within minutes if they don't receive treatment

For these very reasons the American Heart Association (AHA) recently stated that there needs to be more bystander or community involvement in times of an emergency.

What if it were him? Your father or your brother? What if it were her? Your mother, your daughter? Don't be that person who thinks someone else is going to help! It is time to get involved. Know what to do!

What can you do in those vital first minutes to save someone's precious life? Sign up for Johnson County Ambulance's certified AHA HeartSaver CPR w/ AED course.

Because every second counts....
